4. C

In A, there need not be an intersection between earthquakes and landslides.

In B, the curios that are glass things are transparent. So, some curios are transparent. So, B is correct.

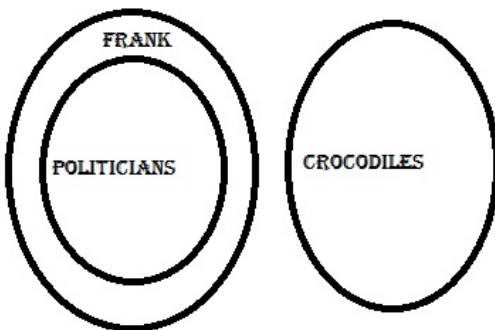

In C, since all clay objects are brittle and XY are clay objects, some XY are brittle.

Option c) is the correct answer.

VIEW SOLUTION

5. B

Only B is the correct option. That can be explained from the Venn Diagram below:

VIEW SOLUTION

6. A

Options C and D are the correct ones as shown in the Venn Diagrams below.

VIEW SOLUTION

7. C

Consider A: Some sphinxes laugh. No cowboy laughs $\Rightarrow$ Some sphinxes are definitely not cowboys.

So, it will be either option a) or c).

Consider D: All crazy people are whistlers. Some crazy people are pianists. So, the crazy people who are pianists are also whistlers $\Rightarrow$ Some whistlers are pianists.

So, option c) is the correct answer.

VIEW SOLUTION

8. C

Mammals are not oviparous. Some creatures are oviparous. Those creatures are not mammals. Hence, C is the correct answer.

VIEW SOLUTION

9. A

A)

All IIMs are in India. For IIMs to be BIMs, at least some BIMs must be in India. But they are not according to the second part of the sentence. Hence, No IIMs are BIMs $\Rightarrow$ Third part can be inferred $\Rightarrow$ A is true

B)

All IIMs are in India. For BIMs to be IIMs, at least some BIMs must be in India. But they are not according to the second part of the sentence. Hence, No BIMs are IIMs.

C and D cannot be inferred as there is a possibility that no IIMs are BIMs.

VIEW SOLUTION

10. D

If $A \Rightarrow B$, then $\sim B \Rightarrow \sim A$

Using this logic, we can say that:

Option A: DCA

A cannot be inferred from D and C.

Option B: ADC

Ant eaters like ants and Balaram likes ants. From this, we cannot say that Balaram is an anteater.

But, from A and C, we can infer D.

Hence, ACD is the answer $\Rightarrow$ Option D.

VIEW SOLUTION

15. D

Option A: Traffic congestion and increase in carbon monoxide are hazardous to health. But, we cannot infer that one is a result of other. Hence, option A is wrong.

Option B: Option B is wrong because the traffic congestion that does not cause increased carbon monoxide might cause some thing else that is hazardous to health.

Option C: C and D are not related. So, we cannot infer E.

Option D: Increase in Carbon monoxide is hazardous to health and traffic congestion increases Carbon monoxide. So, we can say that traffic congestion is hazardous to health.

Six is five indicates six is exactly similar to five. The 4th sentence means that some part of six is twelve. This implies that some part of six is similar to twelve. Six is exactly similar to five, it means some part of five is exactly similar to twelve which is stated in 5.

VIEW SOLUTION

33. C

Statement 1 is an inference, because it is drawing a conclusion (Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan has managed to keep pace with its ambitious goals) based on a fact (all statistical indications). Statement 2 is a judgement since "the vital link between healthy bodies and healthy minds" is not something that can be investigated for data. Statement 3 is clearly a fact. Statement 4 is an opinion, and hence it is a judgement.

VIEW SOLUTION

34. A

The first statement is an opinion since it says "Given the poor quality..." and "...should be switching". The second statement is clearly a fact. The fourth statement is a judgement since the words "...ironic it is..." indicate the opinion of the author and not something that can be verified by facts. The answer is option A.

VIEW SOLUTION

35. D

The first statement says "It can feel like a treadmill that gets you nowhere". This is an opinion and hence the statement is a judgement.

Statement 2 is also a personal opinion and hence a judgement.

Similarly, statements 3 and 4 are also opinions and hence can be categorised as judgements.

80. B

Action and Reaction belong to a group, where the first activity does something and the other responds to it. Assail means attack. When someone attacks us, we respond by defending ourselves. So, that is the best option for this question. Death and disease are not actions (Death and disease happen to us) and Rebirth is not a reaction.

Hence B is the correct option.
